Catalogue by LYMAN H. LOW.

351 FOURTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.

TERMS USED TO DEFINE THE VARIOUS PARTS OF A COIN.

The front or face of a coin bearing the principal device, is called the obverse. Obv.

The back is called the reverse. Rev.

The principal device or object represented on a coin is called the type.

The area or space between the type and the circumference is called the field.

The lower portion of the area of a coin beneath the type, and separated from the rest of the field by a horizontal line, is called the exergue. Ex. The line itself is sometimes called the socle.

Small objects represented either in the field or the exergue, as adjuncts to the main type, are called symbols.

Portions of a coin which are sunk below the level of the surface are said to be incuse.

The words surrounding the device form the legend; if arranged to read in lines across a coin or medal, they are called the inscription.

IMPOSITIONS.

Counterfeits are of three classes: (1) Struck copies from dies imitating the original. (2) Electrotypes. (3) Casts (the moulding process). An altered date on a piece, otherwise genuine, may properly be also classed with the preceding.

Restrikes are impressions from the original dies, but struck subsequently; and although from such original dies, should not be classed with original issues: in certain well-known cases, they have been furtively put on the market, to the detriment of owners of rare originals, and with a willful disregard of their rights, which might almost be called robbery, since the owners, even if conscious, are helpless. Restrikes are close relations to the foregoing class, and should not be encouraged. Medals struck at the Paris mint since 1842 have the name of the metal inscribed on the edge, often with a symbol by which the date of restrike can be approximately known. Therefore issues subsequent to that date are easily determined, whether original or modern.
